Candidates for County Offices Already Patterning for the Slaughter.

Wild Cat Insurance and Their Alleged Solvency.

A Sword with a History--The Temperance Campaigners--The Governor's Guards Organized.

THE STATE CAPITOL.

Reported by The Bee's Bureau.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 28.--The political cauldron in Lancaster county is beginning to seethe as aspirants for the various county offices are showing their heads and soon will be forced to show their hands. For the treasurer's office many are the anxious candidates who want to handle the county cash, and that forty odd thousand dollars of cash which will not be utilized for a few years. Nearly all the present incumbents are candidates for re-election or some other prominent and lucrative position, even the chairman of the republican county central committee looms up as a candidate to the exalted position that he may be in shape to catch a representative nomination in the next rally for honors in the legislature, and to that end will continue to carry the republican party of this county in his pockets till that auspicious time shall arrive. Candidates for all the county offices, including county commissioner, will do well to consult the deciding planet aligned to before the convention is called that the conflicting aspirants may be blotted out with a promise, and forever silenced.

Brother Hardy, of local temperance fame, pointed to the republican blue banner in Ohio this fall, because John B. Finch and John P. St. John, the oracles of the temperance cause in this country, are to take a hand in the political contest of that state, and lead the temperance element into the ranks of democracy.

Gen. Montgomery has got a sword with quite a history. Soon after going into the army his friends presented him with a very handsome sword. Engraved on the handle was, "Colonel Montgomery." At the time the colonel was wounded and captured the sword was taken by a confederate soldier, and a year or two afterward the confederate carrying the sword was captured by Gen. S. A. Strickland's forces and taken to the hands of Gen. Strickland, who brought it to Omaha after the close of the war. Gen. Strickland did not know it belonged to our Gen. Montgomery, and was waiting to hear of some southern officer of that name. Finally, in a round-about way, through the intervention of Gen. Mansderson and other friends, the sword was returned to Gen. Montgomery, who keeps it in his office and feels very proud over the recovery of it.

Work began yesterday on the Richards lot, corner of Eleventh and O streets, and soon a fine four-story brick will loom up.

J. J. Kouhn and Mr. Taylor are making plans for a $25,000 hotel to be erected at the stock yards.

There are still five portfolios to come in before the census department can complete its work, which will probably be the latter part of this week.

Now that the city authorities have decided that they are not competent to cope with the dog it might be well for them to tackle some of the alloys which with every zephyr fills the air with its vile stench.

An advertisement in the way of a card concerning an insurance company doing business in the state is floating around over the country which takes a great responsibility off from the state auditor. The card specifies that they have recently been examined by three country merchants and found to be solvent after a thorough investigation. The card "to whom it may concern" reminds us of the girl who was hunting for a certificate of character after she had filed the information against herself.

THE LEGAL LOG.

Another Order Relative to the Smith Stock of Goods--Several New Cases, Etc.

Before Judge Dundy yesterday the motion to set aside his order turning the Smith stock of goods over to the United States marshal was argued and taken under advisement.

In the case of Lowy vs. Galland, the marshal was instructed to return to the corner the $10,000 of goods that Galland first replevied, and were afterward taken by Lowy on an order from the court.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Reported by The Bee's Bureau.

In the district court yesterday the following new cases were commenced: Louise Linderberg vs. Andrew Stanley. Two cases, one for breach of promise and the other for personal injuries, and in each the sum of $5,000 is asked for. Miss Linderberg alleges that on the 18th day of April, 1884, she and the defendant pledged themselves to marry, but since shortly after that time he has steadily refused to fulfill his promise and for that reason she wants the sum of $5,000. For personal injuries she claims that on the 27th day of June last he maliciously assaulted and threw her out of the house onto the ground, a distance of three feet, from which she sustained $5,000 worth of personal injuries. Honrauke C. Evenson vs. Andrew Evenson, a suit for divorce, and the custody of the child.

Holdings Bros. & Co. commenced replevin proceedings against Sheriff Miller, Herman Lowry and Lewis Cole, for possession of a certain amount of the Smith stock of goods.

Thomas J. Birmingham vs. Dr. Robert M. Stone, a suit for $9,000 damages, on account of malpractice on the person of Mrs. Birmingham, which she is treating for a disease known as the hip joint disease.

Robert McKennan, H. Brennen burglar; Peter Loggreen, forgery and Jerry Collins, abetting money under false pretenses, were arraigned.

The McOlellan case was continued until Thursday.

BY A BEAM.

John McGuire, a Bright Young Man, Meets With a Fatal Accident.

A fatal accident befell John McGuire, a bright young man 23 years of age, about noon yesterday. He was working for Donnan, the horse mover, and they had a building in the street, taking it to some suburban location. This accident, which cost the young man his life, occurred at the corner of Fourteenth and Davenport streets. McGuire was at work around the building when suddenly one of the prop beams, used by house movers to stay a structure with, while they are moving, fell with a crash, striking him on the side of the head and shoulder.

Seeing that the young man suffered intensely, his companions lifted him into a carriage, and had him taken to the residence of his sister, Mrs. Campbell, on the corner of Thirteenth and Pierce streets. Dr. Search was called to administer medical relief, but all his efforts were of no avail. The injured man suffered intereally with internal injuries, until about 2 o'clock, when he died.

He had been working at Keokuk, Iowa, and one at Kansas City. The sad news of his brother's fate has been telegraphed to all of them and they are expected here to-day. The funeral will not be held until to-morrow.

PERSONAL.

Collector Post arrived in the city yesterday. Attorney Bartlett has returned from Red Cloud. Dr. Ferdinand Schroeder has returned from a week's visit to Atchison. Pool Commissioner Geo. H. Daniels arrived in the city yesterday on his way west.

PINERIDGE.

A GREAT COUNCIL AND MUCH TALK.

A prominent gentleman of this city, who was present at the Sioux Indian council, held at Pine Ridge agency last Thursday, brings additional and important information concerning Congressman Holman's committee investigation of affairs among those Indians. The committee consisting of Congressmen Holman, Cannon and Ryan arrived at Pine Ridge, Dakota, on Tuesday, and on Monday notified the Indians that they would be glad to hear any complaints they might wish to make. Runners were accordingly sent out to different bands notifying them to come into the agency early Thursday morning. At the appointed hour on that day over fifteen hundred bucks, with their chiefs, put in appearance. Red Cloud and his band of over three hundred being among first on ground. Although strict orders had been issued that no arms would be allowed to be carried to the council, it was noticed that whenever blankets of Red Cloud's Indians happened to be shoved or thrown aside, knives and revolvers were plainly visible upon their person. When they came up they marched in a single column. Affairs at this time looked threatening, and the committee began to feel very uneasy. Instructions were at once telegraphed to Fort Robinson, in Nebraska, distant fifty miles, to keep the telegraph line open and be prepared for any emergency, as Red Cloud was ugly and threatening trouble. Before the opening of the council a number of Red Cloud's followers assembled in a corner of the council chamber and conversed in loud tones. Threats were made against Agent McGillcuddy, and several of the Indians were urged by Red Cloud's own followers to kill McGillcuddy, who coolly listened to them for a few minutes and then ordered his captain of Indian police, who is very loyal to him, "to suppress that disturbance." The captain of police, with quite a force, accordingly approached the disturbers of the peace and told them that if they did not keep quiet he would arrest every one of them. Thereupon, after some muttering, they subsided.

THE SQUAW MEN.

The fact that a council was to be held had been made known to a number of squaw-men and half-breeds, who had from time to time driven away from the agency and off the reservation, a brisk strategy, only separated from the other by a single wall, but several doors and windows easily admitted the fire department's tongues of fire which soon caught to the wood work and crept along in its ravenous strides of destruction. After the fire department arrived, however, it was not long until they perceived a check on the fire, and kept it confined to the one building, but nothing therein to speak of was saved. It seems that the fire originated in the alcohol room, and was caused by a spontaneous combustion. The men who were at work there say they heard a report that shook the building, and almost immediately afterwards, saw the flames run up through the columns and vats, and shoot out at the top of the roof.

N. Woodward, the beer runner, was in the alcohol room at the time, and received scalp injuries that it is thought he will die. He ran out through the engine room, and when seen by the engineer and two or three other men, the back of his clothing were all in a blaze of fire. They caught hold of the man and tore every thing they could from his back, and he was badly burned. He was taken to his home at 417 Walnut street. At last accounts he was suffering greatly.

The loss by this fire was estimated at $50,000 and it may reach even more than that amount. Mr. George Her, owner of the proprietor, said that the building and machinery first, nearly all of which is either totally destroyed or badly damaged was worth about $75,000; added to this, of course, was a large stock of alcohol and the grain in course of fermentation. The surrounding ware rooms, granaries, store houses, pens, offices, etc., were saved from any damage at all.

The fire department deserves unlimited praise for the magnificent manner in which the members performed their duty. In an incredible short space of time, after arriving on the ground, they had six streams of water flying, and thus saved much property that otherwise would have been reduced to ashes.

Mr. Her said that he had considerable insurance on the building, machinery and property, probably nearly enough to cover the loss, but he could not tell how it stands. Even at the late hour of the fire, thousands of people, hurried to the place from all directions to look at it. The surrounding hills were lined with people. About eight months ago, a very destructive fire visited and destroyed $300,000 worth of this same property.

JUVENILE TOUGHS.

Two Omaha Boys Make an Expedition Over into Council Bluffs.

D. W. Campbell and Harry Evans, two young toughs of Omaha, eleven and thirteen years of age, were arrested yesterday afternoon over in Council Bluffs, for stealing two gold watches and chains and some other jewelry from a Broadway jewelry store over there. Campbell's mother resides at No. 1110 North Twenty-third street, and an officer went there last evening to notify her of her son's arrest. The old lady evidently knew something about the theft before that because she asked immediately and somewhat excitedly, whether the found they watch on him or not.

Proceedings of the City Council at Last Night's Meeting.

A Large Number of Interesting Matters Considered and Disposed of.

Last night's meeting of the city council continued to a very late hour, by reason of unusually lengthy discussions over the matters under consideration.

THE COUNCIL AND ITS RESULTS.

When it is considered that there are about 22,000 Sioux on this reservation, and there is nearly 10,000 in the immediate vicinity of Pine Ridge, close to the Nebraska line, this council must be regarded as an important affair, and the report of the president and his members of the council be appointed to prepare such proper resolutions, and advise such action as may be regarded appropriate to the occasion, and that when this council adjourns it be until 8 p. m. of next Thursday, to consider and set upon the report of said committee.

THE REGULAR BUSINESS.

The council met at 8 o'clock, with President Bechel in the chair. His honor, Mayor Boyd, reported that he had approved the following ordinance: Appropriating $883.96 in favor of James Fox, for paving.

LIQUOR IN FLAMES.

The Willow Springs Distillery Partly Reduced to Ashes. The Estimate of Loss placed at $50,000--Caused by a Combustion of Alcohol--One Man Injured.

About 3 o'clock this morning a long red column of smoke suddenly shot heavenward from one of the Willow Springs Distillery's many buildings, and the engine whistles commenced to sound a most terrific and agonizing alarm of fire. The various departments responded promptly and were soon at the scene of excitement and destruction. But before any streams of water could be thrown the large fermenting building, a frame structure, filled with numerous vats, with about two days supply of grain in them, was completely wrapped in flames. Soon they began to spread and burn their way into the alcohol building, a brick structure, only separated from the other by a single wall, but several doors and windows easily admitted the fire department's tongues of fire which soon caught to the wood work and crept along in its ravenous strides of destruction. After the fire department arrived, however, it was not long until they perceived a check on the fire, and kept it confined to the one building, but nothing therein to speak of was saved.

Several citizens of the Fourth ward petition for the erection of a gas lamp at the corner of Twenty-seventh and Farnham streets. Referred.

Mary Morrison filed a bill of damages sustained by her by being flooded during the recent heavy rains. The total bill amounts to $75.50. Among the articles, washed away and into the sewer she names, four silk dresses, one girdling, a feather bed, two dozen chickens, etc. Placed on file.

W. M. Bushman, petitioned to have the garbage tubs, declared a nuisance and removed.

A SAD SWIM.

A Young Man Finds His Grave in the Treacherous "Old Muddy."

Between 7 and 8 o'clock last evening six young laboring men, strong, healthy, happy and cheerful, plunged into the Missouri river at the foot of Dodge street for a bath. They splashed around, swam out into the stream, then back again, and were having lots of fun. Finally one of their number, John Waterford, a young man 22 years of age, got out a little further than any of the others, where the current was swift and treacherous and he suddenly went under. The water carried him down stream so rapidly that the last time his body was seen to shoot up and sink again was opposite the foot of Dodge street, two blocks below where he went in. None of his companions were good enough swimmers to make an effort to save him. Waterford had been married about one month and lived with his young wife out near the water works. The agony she experienced on receipt of the awful news when it was told to her can be better imagined than described. The body has not been recovered.

THE FIRE FIEND.

A Small Outbreak in the Cellar of Edward Neff & Co's Furniture Store.

About 10 o'clock last night the fire department was called out to suppress a conflagration in the basement of Edward Neff & Co's furniture store, corner of Fifteenth street and Capitol avenue. Fortunately what promised to be a very serious affair was averted, and prevented before very much damage had resulted. The fire, which is supposed to have been caused by combustion, originated among a lot of bed mattresses, and destroyed probably half a dozen. The fire department soon had a stream of water flying and very quickly drowned the flames out. The exact loss could not be accurately estimated last night, but will not reach more than $50.

A TEST ASSAY.

Specimens of Gold Ore From the Newly Discovered Fields.

Mr. J. W. Huntington, of Huntington, Oregon, a gentleman interested in and connected with the new gold mines recently discovered at Pine Ridge, about thirty miles from Huntington, arrived in Omaha yesterday. He brought with him 3,000 pounds of ore to have it assayed at the smelter here as a test, to see what it pans out. The ore includes specimens from all the claims at Pine Ridge. On the result of this assay will depend whether or not the Union Pacific railroad company will take hold of the mines and work them. Mr. Huntington gives a very glowing account of the new field. He tells that a brother of his hounded out $500 worth of gold dust in an ordinary druggist's mortar. The ore he brought with him here, was taken to the smelter yesterday and is being put through the process.

Martin Van Buren, grandson of President Martin Van Buren, died in New York yesterday morning. He was a bachelor and a prominent society man.
